

Community Heat Stories

CONVERSATION WORKSHEET

As Australia faces hotter summers, more extreme heat events, and growing inequality in who can stay safe and cool, it's never been more important to bring people together to drive action. This summer, we want to hear your community's story about how people are affected by extreme heat and the solutions that they would like to see. Together, we can shift the national story about rising temperatures. Our stories will be the foundation of the National Community Heat Summit where community delegates, experts and storytellers will come together to set the national agenda for heat solutions. You can print out and use this worksheet to take notes during conversations, then send us a summary and any standout stories and ideas via the form available through the QR code on the back.

Heat Impacts

(Think about: physical and mental health, bills, daily activities, work, people who are more at risk etc)

How are you impacted by extreme heat?

How do you think you'll be impacted by heat and rising temperatures in the future?

Heat solutions

(Think about: changes to your home, neighbourhood, workplace, transport, services, infrastructure, support, or government action that could help people stay safe and cool)

What changes would help keep you and the people you care about safe and cool in the future?

What does your community need to stay safe and cool during extreme heat?

What does Australia need to do to make sure everyone can stay safe and cool?

Thanks for taking part in the summer listening project ahead of the National Community Heat Summit. You can submit your responses using the QR code.

Get in touch with summit@swelteringcities.org for questions or feedback.

